SECRET NEGOTIATIONS.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—It is intimated that Russia, as a friendly neighbor, England, and Italy is using efforts to bring about peace, in acting independently and unsupported in the two capitals.

Bagdasseni, who saved the Czar's life when an attempt was made to assassinate him, by Berezowski, in Paris, on the 6th of June, 1867, has just come from Wilhelmshohe to St. Petersburg, on a secret mission from Napoleon.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—It is on the basis of peace likely to be accepted by the Provisions is the relinquishment of territorial spoliation from France to receive a pecuniary indemnity. It is reported further that a safe conduct has been asked for Favre to enter Paris, in order to obtain the acquiescence of the government.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—The Times says:

"Bismarck, when offering to surrender, demanded for himself a position which would probably have enabled him to take a prominent part in the restoration of order in France after the conclusion of peace."

General Boyer, on leaving Versailles, went to Luxembourg to meet Bazaine, who had previously arrived there. Favre, Pouyer-Quertier, to go as an envoy to Napoleon at Wilhelmshohe.

TOURS, Oct. 24.—Favre are considered here congratulating the sudden decision of Bismarck to negotiate between France and Prussia. Some parties imagine it is a plan to get into the re-enforcement of the Bonapartists, and others seem to have confidence in the eagerness of Great Britain to bring about peace. Favre, it is said, has been generally considered that England is willing to work more for the interests of Prussia. Out of Prussia, and the sympathy of the German people is apparent, now that the difficulties of taking Paris have been demonstrated. Besides this, England is at last aware that the French people are not organized are quite prepared to act on the clearer; that the best season is at hand, and that the Germans are concentrating their forces against necessity retreating in consequence, and that General Trochu is preparing a series of formidable sorties. Under the circumstances, the sudden change of this phase of affairs accord England to Prussia, is proportionately active. It is assured that the Paris government will not cede an inch of territory nor pay a franc of indemnity, and that the people will struggle will have to go on to the bitter end unless the conditions proscribed by Prussia are very moderate.

TOURS, Oct. 24.—The Journal des Debats says: "An armistice is not yet concluded, but hope is entertained of peace. All are surprised at the attitude of Bismarck. He appears to be willing to the humiliations of Favre or the signatures of Thiers, who suddenly does about-face more than was asked of him. Favre is not disposed to make any concession of boundaries, to allow an election of a national representative, which is why he made peace. In this matter Count Bismarck is in the position of a man who, after having made several attempts, to consider a policy of conciliation, is forced by the intransigeant party to the bitter end under the influence of the belligerent who has had all his arrangements for a long campaign."

The Journal Officiel of all parties united praise to Gambetta for what he has accomplished, and adds: "If Favre has arrived in Tours he has responded to the pressing invitation of the government, and public solicitude, because armaments, united many discussions, made by some opposition journals, and worked, unfortunately, and it was considered time to intervene in the interests and the public of conservation of the national independence of which has developed about by the present administration."

Private as well as official accounts praise General Trochu for his great judgment and unceasing activity. The energy provision for everything, his popularity is unbounded. Paris finds the situation considerably in its particular and entire.

Republican Fifteenth Ward Meeting—Alphabetonia.

Result of the Democratic Primary Meetings.

REPUBLICAN WARD.

A meeting of the Republicans of the Fifteenth Ward was held at No. 84 Monroe-st., last evening, to ratify the nominations made by the Democratic Convention. The meeting was called to order by Mr. Joseph Schaefer, who nominated Mr. E. D. Kent, candidate for Town Clerk of Lake View, for Chairman. Schaefer was elected President, and H. F. Christian, Secretary.

Mr. E. D. Kent, candidate for Town Clerk of Lake View, was nominated, and had he stayed he would be voted for. But he was not there. A letter had been received, and it was the duty of every Republican to support it. The party was imperiled, and it was the duty of every Republican to rally to the rescue. The party was in the hands of the Democrats, and it was the duty of every Republican to see that it was rescued from their hands. The party had been prostituted to the purposes of the Democratic party, and it was the duty of every Republican to see that it was rescued from the hands of the prostitutes
